Introduction

The Lifelong Learning Service (LLS) is here to serve you. Everything we do is aimed at helping you enjoy learning. Now we want to hear what you want to see in the future, by setting up a Learners Forum.

What is the “Learners Forum”?

The Learners Forum will be a regular meeting where all learners currently enrolled with the LLS will have the chance to tell us what they want from their course.

What can we talk about at the meeting?

Anything you like – crèche facilities, the canteen, internet access, communicating with tutors, one-to-one tuition, the term timetable... it's up to you.

Can we talk about courses?

Absolutely! We are now planning next year's course programme (the “curriculum”) and so it's vital we hear from you what courses you want to take. This will help us plan effectively which courses should be run and expanded.

Why do you need OUR help?

To help us plan what courses are available we need to ask the experts – you.

You understand better than anyone what courses you want to take, when and where they should be held and what other things would help you study.

What do you want to see from the LLS in the future? This is your chance to tell us.

Sounds good! How do I get involved?

If you would like to have your say on the future of the LLS, come along to the first Learners Forum in June.

When?

Thursday 17th June (6pm - 8pm)

Where?

The Shadwell Centre
455 The Highway
London E1W 3HP

How do I book a place?

If you want to come to the Learners Forum send the attached form to Amy Fordham.

Alternatively call Amy on: 020 7364 5965

Or email her at:
